

Why Davis Langdon?

Padraic [Partner]

I joined Davis Langdon 6 years ago because I was looking for an opportunity where I would not just be acting in a project management role, but where I would have the opportunity to contribute to a business that wanted to develop and grow.

Anita [Project Manager]

The investment that I have had into my future has been great, and that's definitely helped me and turned me into this person who is actually now more focused on achieving and progressing my career than I was when I joined.

David [Associate]

I came here and was obviously very impressed by the buildings, the people I met, the projects the firm were working on and it's great from a personal point of view to be able to come here and work in that environment and on those projects.

David [Associate]

The way I feel about what I am doing now is that I wish I had started my career here. The projects I am working on, the way the firm is managed and the input I have in both projects and to the firm, I can't see myself moving and I would like to have started here.

Anita [Project Manager]

People that come over from different organisations be they quantity surveyors, architects, or building surveyors, always compare Davis Langdon to their previous organisations and it's always been good: the quality of work we put out, the investment in people and the general attitude and quality of life we have here.

Padraic [Partner]

It's great to be part of a business that is changing and that has a very firm view of where it wants to go, and is motivating its staff to develop the business.

David [Associate]

Its very much performance related here, you get rewarded for how you perform, what you deliver and the effort you put in.
